A Job Offer

Kikkoman Singapore R&D Laboratory Pte Ltd (KSL) is a subsidiary of Kikkoman Corporation, the world’s leading manufacturer of soy sauce, headquartered in Japan. KSL was established in 2005 in Singapore, and is designated to work as the R&D center for Kikkoman’s operations in Asia and Oceania. The R&D projects are operated in the collaboration with the National University of Singapore.

Position: Research Fellow

Job Description: To perform any R&D works and management of R&D projects in a responsible position. Those include:
- Research on the latest knowledge/technology in food science area,
- Finding new targets/subject for R&D projects of company’s interest,
- Planning and managing the R&D projects,
- Co-working with other sections of the company, like marketing, sales and production, throughout the course of product development,
- Communicating with the authorities to maintain and update the information with regard to the regulation/legislation of food industry’s concern,
- And other related tasks.

Degree Requirement: Master degree or higher in food science

Employment Conditions: Term  2 years (and plus)
Starting Salary  SGD 3,200.00 to 3,300.00 per month (as basic salary, depending on the qualifications) with one month AWS.
Annual Leaves  10 days for the first year, 12 for the second year

Skills Required: To perform R&D works and operate the projects, management skills and interpersonal skills are required.

Contact: Kunitomo Kizu
tkidzu@nus.edu.sg